Lang is one of three children in a show business family. Her parents are the late Keith Wegeman, an Olympic long jump skier who went on to play television's Jolly Green Giant, and Judith Lang, a film, television, and commercial actress. Her grandfather was Charles Lang, one of the most outstanding cinematographers of Hollywood's Golden Age who was nominated for 18 Academy Awards and won in 1932 for A Farewell to Arms.

Lang began her career at an early age by appearing in print advertisements and commercials. Her first acting role was in Skatetown USA as the lead's (Patrick Swayze) sister. She went on to appear on the television series, Happy Days, Masquerade, Magnum P.I. and Lonesome Dove: The Outlaw Years. Soon after, she was cast as “Gretchen” on The Young and the Restless which lead to appearances on films such as The Nightstalker, Disney Channel's Mr. Boogedy, and 'Til the End of the Night. She also appeared in many of the Beach Boys' music videos, embodying the classic California Girl. Lang has achieved fame and notoriety internationally from her role on The Bold and the Beautiful. This has led to many roles in foreign productions including a guest-star arc on the critically acclaimed Greek television series 8 Ixeis, in which she spoke Greek; in the Australian production of I'm a Celebrity Get Me Out of Here, and two Italian films, Odissea Nell' Ospizio and Dagli Occhi dell' Amore. She was also a contestant on Dancing with the Stars, Italy.
